Well you're right and you're not. If you use an unstable build it may introduce something that doesn't play well with a commodity or something like I experienced in the past which then got fixed or improved. For what I can see I can divide Netsurf issues to two categories:

1. Interacting with/effected by other elements from other uses.
2. Severe slowdowns which can bring everthing to a halt.

Then you got something like Candy and such that belongs to both.
