As part of my plans for this year, I'd like to pick up some more speed with my Amiga development projects. I've been held up by family matters and job responsibilities for almost three years now, and it's become too much of a ball and chain. I currently hold one full-time and one part-time job, which is madness.

On the plus side, the extra income has allowed me to rebuild my home studio I used to have before I got married, so recently I started playing with MIDI stuff again, putting my X5000 and BarsnPipes at the heart of the studio. It's a lot of fun, and the X5000 is a great machine.

Over Christmastime I did bits and pieces for A-EON's Enhancer Pack, and I also fixed the OS4 USB MIDI driver, which is now more robust. So there has been some progress on my part lately but I'll try to deliver more this year.
