Hmm, at least the memory docky doesn't report anything unusual, but of course, there could be fragmentation going on in the background which i don't see.

I have the Console Prefs option to save the history on, but that only happens on exit (at least that's what the option says), but maybe that is the culprit?

Since the history list gets longer and longer and have to be temporarily saved somewhere it could mess something up...gotta turn it off and check.

Thanks for the hint
