Also, if I load the USB log with Multiviewer then only one window of the log is displayed and there is no way to scroll down to the rest of the log file contents. However, Multiviewer displays it correctly and you can scroll down to see the entire log file. Since I can't find any documentation for a log file format that works with the logfile datatype, it seems fairly useless.

You said Multiviewer both times then, but I assume one of tem was meant to be Multiview...

So testing quickly myself I found that in MultiviewER all works fine, but in the original MultiView the scroll bars don't update till you nudge the size of the window, which is clearly a bug. Ironically this kind of bug more usually occurs the other way round.
