You can't link a window to another window in this way. Intuition doesn't (currently) work that way, and isn't likely to change. Certainly not soon enough to make it worth it.

You can use `WA_StayTop` to ensure that the sub window always stays on top of all other (non staytop) windows. This should be used with caution.

If you really really need to have two windows follow each other around then you will need to listen to the `IDCMP_CHANGEDWINDOW` messages. Then lock intuition search for your window and re depth arrange the sub window.
