The full Codebench program's feature set has expanded considerably though, perhaps you need to switch some features off? I never ran it with the maximum dictionary settings for example.

It never occurred to me that the program's settings would slow down the gadget but now that you've mentioned the dictionary it makes perfect sense. Will have a look at it, thanks for the tip!

I want a full-featured and fast editor. Classes kind of limit some things.

I know: a gadget will hardly ever offer the same as a full-fledged editor. Still, a gadget for a more sophisticated text editing is something we lack a great deal.
