WindowToFront operates on the location of the mouse click, so is not really of use in this regard.

DepthToFront however, generates a list of windows, so in theory were an ARexx port added or similar program created that could give list of windows to bring to front. Tricky to make 100% reliable though as a windows might get closed inbetween fetching the list of open windows and issue to the TOFRONT command. Could be a useful little tool though ...
