Let me firstly thank you for your support. We strive hard to make CodeBench the best product it can be, although this is not only time consuming, but involves a lot of dependencies on OS components.

As such, CodeBench currently relies on certain functionality being present which simply does not exist in the current 4.1 release.

Hopefully, update 1 shouldn't be too much longer, and we promise to make a new public version as soon as possible after this update is released.
