PhotoAlbum was the program I had been using for some years, because it was the "least sucky" program available :) . But the author lost interest in it & CyberShow, due to lack of people paying the shareware fee (and perhaps also due to lack of interest in the Amiga).

Although my program is effectively a PhotoAlbum replacement, I will probably make it act as a picture viewer program (ala CyberShow) also. CyberShow totally lacked the ability to "drag scroll", which is something I love, so I definitely want to picture viewer with that ability.

At the moment I don't use MUI or in fact any GUI system, but that actually has some advantages in giving me the freedom to do some interesting things.
