Yes, if I use 320x240, the screen is very small. It looks like a square in the middle of the monitor.

Do you have a 320x240 (and 320x256) screenmode set-up in Sys:Prefs/ScreenMode > Monitors?

RunInUAE's installer should create one automatically, unless either (a) you told it not to, or (b) you have DDC enabled (aka Detect settings automatically).

NOTE: Originally RunInUAE did not care about DDC, but manually adding screenmodes can fk-*p user's OS4 machine (making it unusable), due to an (imho!) flaw in how OS4 allocates screenmode IDs for DDC. So I had to stop it doing this. Would be great if OS4 actually fixed this (IMHO serious) flaw...
