

Subject: : Timberwolf

Topic: : Timberwolf beta 4 available

Re: Timberwolf beta 4 available

Author: : Bille

Date: : 2012/6/30 21:10:35

URL:

Quote:

sicky wrote:

@Bille

Home now and CTRL-V works for paste funtion which makes it so much more useable!

Golded uses the CTRL button too for quite a lot of the cut'n'paste stuff, that's what made me try it. I don't have a PC either and am not a Linux fan. I think the Mac version of Firefox used the Mac/Amiga key too, though since getting an X1000 (and still have the XE) do not have the desk space for it so the Mac has not been used for a good while.

Quote:

Also noticed a little bit faster here on my SAM460 which is good news too. Will try it a bit more but think MUIOWB will be my default browser until major speed increase, but all in all very good work and pleased with results 😊

That was my first impression, the responsiveness and speed has had a huge boost. In fact it may be faster than MUI-OWB on my X1000.

Likewise MUIOWB is still my main browser but TW has come on really well well with the last update. Especially the cut'n'paste, I tend to use that a lot so the previous versions were not really useable for me. This one is.

The twins have done a damned good job. Once they have all the Amiga niceties too (not for a while I know) it could well become the best browser around.