Hi mate just a curiosity about Gimp, is there any technical issue for releasing 2.6 once 2.8 is already available ? 😊

Gimp 2.6 is what I can offer. It is now well tested and I worked on it for over a year.

Technically there is no big problem to port 2.8, except that I expect, that Gimp 2.8 will be horribly slow. The new Gimp uses the new GEGL graphics system. In parts it is implemented in 2.6 too and it is very slow. Maybe it can be optimized, but this means additionally work. So I guess I will need about a year (or more) to complete a port.

I wonder why I did such a thing?

Damn - I really don't know 😊
