I thought Fab was going to release the source code of all future versions of Odyssey

He release 1.25 version, which is last one, on github, which have endian issues, because of which he didn't release 1.25 for morphos, and because of which we don't have it on os4 as well.

I therefore assumed that OS4 being stuck on Odyssey 1.23 was due to our developers (esp. you) being rather busy...

Probably you wasn't involved in those discussions everywhere in last year, but new version of webkit have problems with endianes in JS related code. Until they not fixed, webkit will crash on big endian machines almost on every modern site. There and on amigaworld, and on morphzone few threads about, to summorize which: everyone hope that someone (like Fab) will deal with it :)
