* "tab_new_session:1" does not bring the screen to the front, when the window is already open. This behaviour seems annoyingly inconsistent, since it does come to the front if NetSurf wasn't already running. I'm not sure whether the best solution is to (1) stop NetSurf bringing it's window/screen to the front when it is first created when opening a link (is that even possible... or desirable?), or (2) Simply always bring the window/screen to the front (when opening a link), despite "Open new tabs in background" (seems a bit strange & potentially unwanted).

After more thought (and experiencing the updated NetSurf), I've come to the conclusion that it would be better if NetSurf NEVER came to the front (whether or not it was open before) if "Open new tabs in background" is ticked.

However, if that's not possible for some reason, then the current (consistent) behaviour is probably better the old (inconsistent) behaviour.
