An update for the "uploader" situation...

I've now updated the rules for uploading files as well as added new functionality to the administration interface. All new uploads must now be provided with a valid email address.

File approvers will not be able to approve files with a non validated email address.

Email addresses must first be validated manually. This will be in the form of a staff member sending an email to the specified address and once a valid reply is received the address can be validated and the file approved.

Email addresses will be considered as valid for one year. That is, any files being uploaded within this window won't require a new validation. Once passing the one year limit the email address will have to be validated again for any subsequent uploads.

Files being uploaded with an invalid address, an obfuscated address or an address that does not return a valid response will be removed.

Note: This does not mean that your email address have to be public. You can still use the checkbox to make you email address private.
