Thank you also for the workaround, i'll wait for a proper fix, but will use your idea if it takes too long and the behaviour is starting to get on my nerves

It's yet to be determined if it's window.class bug or intended behaviour so I wouldn't "wait for fix" but just snapshot both variants to your preferred location. A one off action.

Assuming you don't try and be 'clever' and take advantage of the two types of snapshot to have different settings when started from shell, when the fix is delivered if fixed it be, you will never even notice.
