Well this sounds very similar to a problem I had with installing PATA hard-drives on my AmigaONE XE some years ago. I tried 4 hard-drives of the exact same model number (they were Western Digital drives - I could probably find the model number if necessary). I tried every possible setting to get these drives to work correctly. The drives would appear to format and partition fine but when it came to install OS4, the install would always stop with an error at a random file being copied.

Eventually, I decided to try a different type of HD. The drives were again Western Digital, but they were RAID types. They worked perfectly, first time!

So I put it down to an incompatibility of hardware.
Maybe a similar thing has occurred in your case?
