I'm unsure of the markings to recognise the HD's as RAID types. I did contact Western Digital prior to purchase to ask. They replied, but unfortunately, I no longer have their response.

The HD's that work are WD Caviar RE:

Model No: WD2500SB-01RFA0.

and

WD Caviar:

Model No: WD1600BB-56RDA0.

I have 2 each of the above drives - all 4 of which work flawlessly.

It's possible that the "RE" in the model name stands for "RAID Edition" but I don't know.

The HD's that gave problems were WD Caviar Blue:

Model No: WD1600AAJB-00J3A0.

All 4 of this type of HD gave the same troubles.
