Hi K-L,

I have read some guides to configure .uaerc_RunInUAE.

I noticed some differences between these guides.

So I'm a bit confused about their use.

Would it be possible to have a configuration file? already done.

To download it somewhere?

It would be much simpler for me to understand the parameters that I can enable.

And then make further tests, even if I use winUAE for me it would be a great help.

At the moment any resolution I choose does not seem to have any impact on performance.

But for me it would be important to have an example file to work on, in this case I could work on a file with the right parameters already set and modify them for my needs.

Thanks again for your answer, and for any help.
