Strange. It's a good clarification that you can see window closed. But sadly it means that serial debugs are not in sync with the freeze issue which is odd.

I could test your binary (e-mail sent too) and I could still add more logging to debug build.

Also some of the current prints are a little bit confusing. In window mode (with public screen) we are not going to close the screen so printing that kind of info is misleading. Some checks could be rearranged inside SDL2 to avoid these.
