I've got a 'Work' partition on my hard drive which I've been using since I put my X5000 system together. But today when trying to make a new drawer I got a 'Error :1060' I then found out that I cant save anything to that partition but I can delete files.

It was working fine yesterday. Its using the NGFilesystem and the State is set to read-/writeable. The other partitions are working.

I've got everything backed up but before I format the partition and start again I wondered if anybody new anything to check first.
