Thanks for updating sgit. I've switched to using git for my projects, and on AmigaOS I need to keep referring to this thread to remind me how to get things done.

One frustrating annoyance is that it defaults to "unknown user" if you forget to configure the name and email address before the first commit. Every time that happens I need to figure out how to undo the commit and redo it with the correct user details. I wish it would ask you to enter those details instead.
