Indy Car Racing 2 (Papyrus Design) runs even on G3 A1 system, but at least here (might be different with larger cache) my brief testing didn't show a tremendous difference between interpretive and compiling core. With the latter, at least hot lapping is quick enough, add other cars or details surpassing GC's F1 Grand Prix (Microprose) "to taste".

I did this with frameskip=1, so I suppose the value the game showed was 100 % higher. Then it was running at 15 fps and less.
