I find a sure way to the GR - which is still there with the new version - is to use the Show Unread feature on Amiga.org (requires being logged in permanently) and then click on the little "new" icons next to each one. It often results in a DSI, which can sometimes be ignored, sometimes not (and often it results in the CPU going to 100%). And once it has happened, none of the unread threads are shown any more, although I can still use the "new" icons from the forum overview.

Anybody else see this?

Apart from this, I agree that the new one is faster and probably also more stable. Thanks to everyone involved in getting the work rolling!

Best regards,

Niels
