2) Comment out one include "BCRefPtrWTF.h" as a workaround. To be checked.

That one will surely harmless. I remember i add it myself for Cygwin. Probabaly something somewhere about big/small letters still.

3) At linking phase I'm using ppc-amigaos-g++ and removed -lstdc++. To be checked which way is better.

gcc with -lstdc++ and g++ without, produce the same size of binary, and it works the same. But probably you right if you mean to make it all looks cleaner, less "-l" better at least visually )
