Yep. i update my translation according to the very latest owb.cd you update recently in github

I just added new thing on bottom, and fix the older strings on the place where they were.

That's ok, imho there is no need to place strings in a perfect order, putting new one below is more than enough

So at least for now there will be just updated OWB.cd and everyone can translate what and when they wish :)

Sure, but putting all that .ct files directly in repo will be better for sure, so all files will be quickly available for any old and eventual new translators

All you need is use the tool to revert back the owb.ct files we currently miss, then create a new translation folder in repo:

Translations --> put all owb.ct files for various languages here
