Sure, but putting all that .ct files directly in repo will be better for sure, so all files will be quickly available for any old and eventual new translators

All you need is use the tool to revert back the owb.ct files we currently miss, then create a new translation folder in repo:

Translations --> put all owb.ct files for various languages here

Yeah, just later a bit. As it still take time. Because recreating .ct files from translations weren't that perfect via simplecat, it give some warnings which manually need to be deal on. Nothing important or problematic, just need to spend some time on.
