Had bookmarked this old thread and found it while cleaning up old bookmarks.

I can also only speculate also as to when a release will come.

(Hans's blog post regarding working with deadlines comes to mind here .)

I wonder if the hold up could have anything to do with trying to find some option(s) for X1000 users ?. (Pure speculation on my part).

My role is as a Beta tester. One is not always allowed to be verbose .(I already overstepped earlier in the year).

I have tasked myself to push the video playback on Polaris as far as I can with the machine,components,drivers and software available to me. Interestingly this is an area that the actual Developers of the drivers and Emotion may not have had the time to explore.
