I actually upgraded to os3.1 and a gotek just to be able to test this one :)

It works when using the A500 as customer and the X5000 as service.

But when using the X5000 as customer it does not work, the gui is just frozen on the X5000.

The service program seems to work under 1.3 also so it would be great if i could get it working with the X5000 as the customer.

Can you use your X5000 as customer?

My main boot partition is filled with the latest beta components but i also checked with my "safe" system partition that is quite close to the one you have and i have the same result there.

There was no contact information in the archive but i think i know how to contact the author after some googeling so if im motivated someday and feel confident that it's because of bugs in his program i could try to contact him.
