But i can't make that step but no matter my aim is to have a working system. And that's probably not possible for me.

Did you try to press left Amiga + m to switch the screens and return to WB, while the video plays?

If I use an application such as BoingCube with the audio activated and then I also watch a Video with the audio activated, the applications slow down.

Maybe it has to do with the emulation of the sound. I would say have a look on configuration on accuracy, which you might need to lower, so that the emulator uses less CPU on that. But that's a guess.

You have created a great setup there... This looks amazing, having in mind that it is running on software emulation.
