I am nowhere near my amiga right now but I remember reading the readme from new GCC builds and always wanted to ask.

There is a snippet about shared objects/builds in there that says to avoid shared builds due to some planned restructuring.

What is needed for this restructuring?

Has this restructuring already started and messed up shared builds...what may cause the many issues we are having?

Would it be possible to revert these changes to get an outdated, but working, shared support back?

Thank you
