

Subject: : Amiga General Forum

Topic: : Wharever happened to Libre Office for OS4?

Re: Wharever happened to Libre Office for OS4?

Author: : LiveForIt

Date: : 2021/2/2 8:30:01

URL:

@billyfish

Quote:

I always wondered about what it would take to write a converter program for final writer <-> docx

I expect, you won't use it, if you had to save, and the convert it, if you can just save in a different program on different OS, or doing it on office365 on the web, or using google docs, even if its slower.

Export to PDF, might also be something people like to have, more and more sending PDF files over email, instead of printed documents.

Ritch text format, was kind of the universal format before docx, but it was blamed for the spared of viruses, but I'm pretty sure, that more problem with programs viewing the documents, and outlook that spoofing files, by allowing attachments to include attachment of wrong file type in the mime header, sadly Microsoft developers suck, so they will never get it fixed. Can only expect its feature / backdoor for government agency. Because MS blocked sharing .exe files, it's become common knowledge that change filename, or trick outlook, I guess its feature now, if they remove security hole, people will complain. Maybe they had to have that because self-extracting zip files. who knows.