I noticed that you suggested to another user in a previous post to revert to the WarpDT datatypes when he had a crash.

I suggested that while I was trying to help him figure out where the problem is. I don't have anything against AK and Enhancer. I proposed him to step by step revert things, until he finds a way to resolve the problem. That's why the forums are and that's what we do here. Help each other. Are we allowed to do that?

I didn't blame anyone and anything.
