This is basically what AEON do, give you a USB with the Enhancer drivers already installed on it so you can boot from that rather than an actual CDROM.

The issues are that the Sam460CR is pickier with working models of RadeonHD SI cards plus the Radeon Rx cards do not show U-boot on the Sam460CR machines plus there is no Radeon RX lite driver currently and Enhancer 2.0 which contains the Radeon RX driver is currently only sold as a digital download. So makes it difficult for A-Cube to legally include it on bootable medium.
