And something I forgot to answer.

Quote:

They are basically robbing themselves by investing that amount of money in such an ungrateful community.

Those products that A-Eon created we payed for them, we didn't steal them and we didn't share them with others. We payed with our money, with our work and with our time. And most of the times, even earlier than they were commercially ready. So, is this community ungrateful as you describe it? I totally disagree with that.

And even if we are ungrateful, that doesn't mean that we should like whatever someone does, and that we should follow them for whatever they release. Or if you like, at the end, we are free to decide what we will buy and use and what we won't, as we are free to agree and disagree with their practices. That doesn't make as more whiners or negative than others.

I hope you agree with that.
