Possible, I didn't make myself clear, and I am sorry about that.

I am thinking on how we can promote projects through amigans.net, by placing the necessary information inside our website. People will not be able to request for donations, or ask for help though that implementation.

For example, aminet.net has the donation information at their site, so how we can let the users know about it?

But of course, I am open for other ideas as well. But I am not talking to create one more bounty website.
