No worries. I find the idea of having a link in OS4Depot on every project quite useful to be honest, and that would be great.

Maybe, if you have time to do it, usually for paypal the code is the same. Possible, an ID or the username changes.

So, it would be nice if the user has the option to select:

- Paypal, and add only the necessary info in a textfield, which you will get and add it at the standard script of the button
- Other, and add a URL link

And maybe at the future you could add other options as well. But I agree with you, not letting the user to add any script there. This should be monetized.
