As NinjaCyborg said, it is not possible for any player to play those videos based on the page url. It would need a script that takes that URL and finds the actual video URL, like what aiostreams do.

I had a look on that website, and seems doable to create such a script. The thing is that the videos are all 1080p, and without a Gfx card that supports va.library, it won't be able to play those videos in a good viewable speed.
