

Subject: : AmigaOS4

Topic: : Emotion - the commercial version?

Re: Emotion - the commercial version?

Author: : walkero

Date: : 2021/9/23 11:37:29

URL:

> I do not understand how those browsers which can show streams do the trick.

The code of the website gives the necessary url to the embedded player they use. So, it is a matter of the website code to serve the video at the browser the right way.

External applications, like emotion need to have that url, but they do not have any connection with the webpage, nor they include browser capabilities to extract that url from the website code.