I am thinking about AIOStreamsNG, or Amitube or something else. It wouldn't be too hard to do. But it won't be part of MediaVault, this is not going to be open sourced. For YouTube to make it work with every video and live streams, I use my own API, which et the necessary data from youtube, and shouldn't be visible to others. Especially, it shouldn't be able to be used by others. I just did it to have aiostreams available on time for AmiWest.

I am thinking to develop an app that is going to be able to be used from terminal, like aiostreams do, but will also have a GUI if started from WB. As soon as this is going to be released, I am afraid that the python script will stop working, to prevent others to use my API.
