Both yes and no.

Sometimes the stutters can be fixed by software. A lot of work has gone into fixing the audio problems. But the VIA686B southbridge chip suffers from interrupt problems (stated several times by OS4 audio driver author DaveAE). So heavy bus usage like advanced 3D games or such will probably never work without stuttering on A1's.

This is of course not a issue on any new hardware that may/will be released for OS4.
