Loading my own page on <http://nbache.dk> and going to one of the subpages, which are in themselves framesets, led to the links in the largest frame not being usable, instead the ones on the left frame at the same Y-position were followed (IIRC).

Yes, same problem as in your site. Looks like frame indices or something like this are mixed up when evaluating the button under the mouse.

Looked through tickets too (briefly), no avail.
