Thanks for your input.

The problem was that I just got a black screen when I booted after changing the tooltypes and connected my new LCD. And when I created new modes I got alot of "out of range" messages from my monitor on modes known to work. Now all those modes work "magically".

I think OS4 should revert to a standard resolution known to work on any monitor if the displaylist IDs doesn't correspond to the saved prefs. That's all.
