For the last few weeks I've been writing a unique(?) picture/album browser for OS4, and am close to adding all the main features. While it still needs polishing, it already works pretty nicely, and I was wondering if there was interest in me releasing a "preview" version of it?

What it does is allow you to browse your folders, see thumbnails of all the pictures, open those pictures & put them where you like on the screen. When you go back to the folder, the pictures will appear where you left them! You can also rename/delete/move pictures.

All the previous "picture cataloguers" & "photo management" programs I've tried on the Amiga felt clunky, and in general really sucked, so this is my attempt to "do it right" (and so far I am loving it). I want it to be as easy & natural to use as possible, with as little configuration required as possible.

EDIT: The latest release is given in this post.
