Thanks for that Samo79 but Spot and I have had dealing before in emails even with him sending me his guides directly... and yes, I found his works helpful in getting some mud codebases configured right...

after a while if you keep at it you get to recognise similar things like particular headers missing and replacing %ld with now I can't remember LOL but I really want to stop all the hit and miss and actually start learning so I can be one of the ones problem solving someone elses problem... besides, that's what I'm better at 😊

It seems I'm destined to learn C and not C++ but I am willing to listen... always better to listen than be stubborn...

except in the case of red verses blue etc etc... there is only one AmigaOS cackle 🤪
