Edit: Looking at the news story thread, modfr is having the same issue, and kas1e and Chris backs it up. So yeah. Problem isn't solved.

Actually I didn't try it (and I daren't now), but the crashlog modfr posted looks identical to the ones I was getting with your threaded DNS libcurl.

Its a bit odd that some people are fine and others are getting problems. IIRC the threaded DNS didn't crash consistently, so the people who are OK may just not have hit the problem yet.

The info that Roadshow has been updated is very interesting, and I look forward to retesting the threaded resolver once that is finally released. I daresay kas1e has a point about pthreads too, although I'm doubtful that would cause `bsdsocket.library` to crash.
