I used my own programming language (Portable), which is heavily based upon AmigaE. It currently generates C++ code, and then compiles this with GCC (at some point I hope to generate plain C instead of C++).

The GUI "toolkit" is also my own (and is not based upon anything), and comes with Portable r6 (it is the 'std/cGui' module). As mentioned above, this currently generates a MUI gui, but for AmigaOS4 I plan to eventually have it generate a Reaction gui.

Why? 😊
