But it isn't an Amiga application. It's a port. See also my other reply.

EDIT: AREXX-Interface, proper workbench startup handling, and other AmigaOS-specific features are definitely planned, as is the update to later versions of the Firefox trunk, but the first version will be a port, nothing more, nothing less.

OK. Fair point, best to get it all working before adding all the nice features.

The cut and paste working will certainly make the next release far more useable, that was one of the best things I read in a while !
