no milestones, no deadline?

Deadlines in amiga projects ?:) Are you sure that it make any sense to set some, just to broken it later with any kind of excuse ? If so: end of 2012.

AmigaBounty.net look unprofessional.

~~There is also some other things which make amigabounty looks unprofessional: like need to remove from suggested list some bountyes as they already done, or like those ones which make no sense, or like make something about Gnash and still transfer money to afxgroup, even if there is no ready plugin to use, as we all know that there is no browsers with normall support of npapi enabled.~~

You know for sure that amigabounty owners have no interest to handle all of this, they have no money, they even pay it from their own for hosting and stuff, so we can't blame them that they lazy there, or slow there, or "looks unprofessional" here. If someone will spend few tens of thousands to them, then they for sure will looks like proffesionals :) (as all the other amiga related stuff).
