For some reason, the dev builds don't like URW Palladio fonts..

Launched ok after I got rid of the URW Palladio fonts ....

but launched fine after all fonts were restored to normal.

Perhaps it finished scanning the fonts files after I got rid of the URW Palladio fonts ....

but I am not sure if it even scans the fonts files now after everything is back to normal.

It won't scan them again unless you delete the cache file (FontGlyphCache) or change the fallback font through the GUI (there are some extra non-GUI options too, where you can specify a list of fonts to use and stop NetSurf scanning anything else, which might be an alternative workaround here).

Now we've tracked it down to URW Palladio, I will try that here (I assume I don't have it installed but not at home currently to check). If I can reproduce the crash it makes it much easier to fix 😊
